Irma Elks' Barbecue and Picnic at North Irma Community Hall July 8

WITH THE District Agriculturist

By J. S. Duncan

Field Inspection

Anyone who seeded registered seed this spring and wants their crop field inspected should have their application for field inspection in by June 30. There are usually a few who leave it too late and can't be accepted. There are application forms at my office.

Ontario Farm Work Excursion

Again this year there is a cheap fare to Ontario for men going east to help with haying and harvest. To go east you must be over 18 years, strong and healthy and willing to do farm work. The cost of the train ticket is $10.00 going east and $11.50 coming back. Full information and transportation warrants are available from this office.

Weeds

Every year the same old story, too little and too late. If the weeds are treated at the right time with any of the 2,4-D products on the market and the directions on the container are followed you will get control of susceptible weeds in nearly every case. (Adverse weather conditions can cause trouble). Remember that all weeds cannot be killed with 2,4-D and use it as a very valuable form of assistance in weed control. It is certainly not the complete answer. Proper farm management and good farming practices are our best method of weed control.

Cattle Feed

It is still not too late to seed some alfalfa to build up the feed supplies for this winter. If Danvers, Mima, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. N. Fluevog and family last week, Dr. Egedahl of Sedgewick also spent the week at Fluevog's. Where are all these gloomy predictions that there would be no rain this summer? Everything begins to look so fresh and green again and the gardens have seemingly taken on new life.

NOTICE TO 4-H CLUB MEMBERS

The Dept. of Agriculture will sponsor a 4H Club Rally at Wainwright on Tuesday, June 3, starting with registration at the IOOF hall at 9:45 a.m.

A good program is lined up with ball games in the afternoon. Any member who can attend is asked to do so and should bring a picnic lunch—coffee and milk will be supplied.

Rally will be over at 4:30 p.m. It is hoped there will be a good turnout of the Irma members who may be able to make up several carloads.

The 4H Wheat Club meeting which was scheduled at Irma for that date will be cancelled.

Weekly Inspirational Corner

(Sponsored by an Irma Times reader)

I waited patiently for the Lord; and He inclined unto me, and heard my cry.

He brought me up also out of a horrible pit, out of the miry clay, and set my feet upon a rock, and established my going.

And He hath put a new song in my mouth, even praise unto our God: many shall see it, and fear, and shall trust in the Lord. Blessed is that man that maketh the Lord his trust, and respecteth not the proud, nor such as turn aside to lies.

Many, O Lord my God, are thy wonderful works which thou hast done, and thy thoughts which are to us—word.

PSALM 40:1-5.

4-H Club Rally to be Held In Wainwright July 3

There is going to be a 4H Club Rally in Wainwright on Tuesday, July 3. Both home-making and agricultural clubs will be in attendance and the rally will start sharp at 10 a.m. in the IOOF hall, Wainwright.

The morning program for boys and girls clubs will be separate, the girls in the IOOF hall and the boys in the Legion hall. A joint sports program will be organized for the afternoon and will last until about 4:30 p.m.

Each club is being asked for two dollars to pay for hall, janitor service, beverages, etc. This should be paid before lunch. The boys program will start at 9:45 a.m. with registration at the IOOF hall. This will be followed by judging competitions and a general interest program.

I would like one member of each club, preferably the president or one of the executive, to be prepared to say a few words about the activities of the club over the past year.

Also any clubs or club members who have or can get any softfall equipment should bring it along for the afternoon program. Lunch will be at 12:15. Each club is responsible for their own lunch. You may bring anything you wish, or eat down town if you would rather, a beverage and dixie cups will be supplied. We will be eating lunch as a group in the PMC arena grounds.

Remember that parents and friends are welcome as well as 4H members and leaders.

—J. S. Duncan, D.A.

Where are all these gloomy predictions that there would be no rain this summer? Everything begins to look so fresh and green again and the gardens have seemingly taken on new life.

EASTERLY ECHOES

A front tire blowout was the cause of an accident on Highway 14 on Tuesday when Commander Allen with his chuck wagon horses aboard hit the ditch near Patterson's hill. The tailgate on the truck broke, allowing the horses to escape without serious injury. The drivers were also unhurt though the truck was badly damaged. Bob and Maureen Dempsey were witnesses to the accident and helped to round up the horses and put them to pasture on the Dempsey farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Elliot, along with quite a number of other local folk, are working at the army camp during busy summer exercises. Thanks to several industrious workers, the Roseberry Picnic was a big success. The Tigers won first in the baseball. Wainwright ladies defeated Irma and a pick-up team of boys and girls enjoyed a good game. Irma brass band supplied some very pleasant music. Plans are already brewing for next summer.

Southern Sayings

Seen around the district last Saturday evening were Melvin and Bud Dawson of Edmonton. Mr. and Mrs. Walcoe Hall and family of Taber were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Long last week-end, returning to Taber on Monday. Mrs. Mack Allard and young son accompanied them to join Mark and spend a few weeks at Waterton Lakes.

Mr. John Whitten of Elgin, Man., visited at the home of his cousin Mr. J. Jackson last week as he was returning from a trip to Vancouver where he attended the Legion convention. Miss Nellie Cairns is spending the summer holidays working at the Wainwright hospital.

Booklet has comic books rating scale

A 16-page booklet, "What's Wrong with Comic Books", recently published by the Alberta Government, has been prepared as a guide to parents who wish to provide their children with reading material that is both interesting and educational.

Compiled by the Advisory Board on Objectionable Publications, the booklet deals with comic books that are detrimental and carried descriptions of how they influence the behaviour of children.

The advisory board, appointed by the Alberta Government to investigate the various types of "Comics", studied the influence of these publications and made recommendations on alternative types of beneficial reading material.

Objections

The major objections to comics listed by the board are:

1. Some comics glorify crime and criminals. They encourage the commission of crime and contempt for lawful authority.
2. Some comics present a distorted, unhealthy and immoral concept of sex and marriage.
3. Some comics foster prejudice against class, race, creed and nationality.
4. Some comics portray violent death, grotesque, fantastic and unnatural creatures with repulsive realism.
5. Most comics are inartistic.
6. All comics are detrimental to good reading skill.

A rating scale contained in the booklet is intended for the use of parents who wish to evaluate the type of literature their children are reading. In addition the names of a variety of inexpensive books are listed for parents who wish to improve the reading standards of their children.

A section entitled "Guiding Your Child to Good Reading" deals with the types of reading material that have a beneficial effect and advises parents on how to select literature that will provide guidance, education and entertainment for their children.

DANGEROUS PESTS

"Houseflies increase at a very great rate. One female can, in seven weeks, be the founder of a family of 432,000. Each fly, in its wanderings over garbage and filth, can transfer millions of germs to the tables and persons of human beings, spreading disease germs and spoiling food. By thoroughly screening doors and windows, and by the use of reliable insect repellents, these pests can be kept out of the house. The screen door should be equipped with a good spring to keep it closed against flies and other insects."

Family Favorite

So delicious, and so easy to make, too! For dependable results when you bake at home use fast-rising Fleischmann's Active Dry Yeast.

Rye Bread

1. Measure into bowl ½ cup lukewarm water. Stir in 1 tablespoon granulated sugar.
2. Sprinkle with contents of 3 envelopes Fleischmann's Active Dry Yeast. Let stand 10 minutes, THEN stir well.
3. Stir into yeast mixture ½ cup warm water 2 tablespoons soft shortening ½ cup molasses 1 tablespoon salt 2 teaspoons caraway seeds, optional.
4. Stir in 2 cups once-sifted rye flour (light or dark) and beat until smooth.

Work in 2½ cups (about) once-sifted all-purpose flour to make a stiff dough.

3. Tug out on lightly-floured board and knead until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl and brush with melted butter. Cover. Let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk—about 1½ hours.

4. Punch down dough. Divide dough in half. Shape each half of dough into a loaf. Place loaves, well apart, on a cookie sheet sprinkled with caraway seeds. Cover with a damp cloth. Let rise until doubled in bulk—about 1 hour. Brush each loaf with a little cold water. Bake in a hot oven, 450°, 10 minutes. Reduce heat to moderate, 350°, and continue, to bake until loaves sound hollow when tapped with knuckles—20 to 25 minutes longer. Yield—2 loaves.

Child should be taught safety rules to avoid farm accidents

Farms used to be considered the safest place to bring up children. While today they may still be safer than busy modern cities and industrial areas, there are many hazards on the farm because of the mechanization in modern agriculture.

Most dangerous driving months still ahead

REGINA.—There have been 22 highway fatalities in Saskatchewan to date, with the most dangerous driving months of the year still ahead, declares J. A. Christie, chairman of the highway traffic board.

"With the advent of better motoring during May, the highway death toll rose to eight, the worst record for this month since 1953," Mr. Christie said. "We are rapidly catching up to last year's death toll, which was the highest ever recorded in Saskatchewan."

During 1955, approximately 60 percent of the year's fatalities occurred between June 1 and October 31. This figure has been steadily increasing during the past few years, Mr. Christie said, and could show another increase this year unless motorists make a special effort to drive sensibly and carefully.

"There are two major causes of summer accidents—speed and inattention," Mr. Christie continued. "It is up to each driver to remedy this situation; no one else can do it for him."

The desire to resist oppression is implanted in the nature of men.

—Tacitus

In considering safety, the old saying, "Prevention is better than cure," holds true. The child, as soon as he is old enough, should be taught safety, and the parents would do well to insist on strict obedience to carefully explained safety rules. The parents' own example in observing safety rules has a big influence with the child. Discuss with children why they are not allowed to play or ride on machinery. Frequently a visiting child has an accident—explain the rules to any little visitor.

The small child should have a well equipped area in which to play, where mother can see him by glancing out the window. The play of any pre-school child should be supervised, so that you know where he is.

Teach small children to stay out of pens and pastures where there are mother animals with their young. Fear for the safety of their young can make animals dangerous.

For older children, wait until the child has judgment and is big enough to reach all controls easily before he is taught to drive a tractor.

Encourage the young person to go on to progressively harder jobs as he becomes more capable. Leave more difficult tractor work such as hillside and highway for men.

Once there is equipment attached, there should be no one on the machine but the driver. When farm equipment is being used, teach children to watch from a distance, from a fence, etc. Father or hired help are busy with running the machinery and may not notice a child in the area, and so may back or run over him accidentally.

Teach children, by word and example, to have respect for the power of machinery and that serious hazards are involved with use of it.

Handling a bull is dangerous and should be done only by competent adults.

Be sure abandoned wells and cisterns are covered securely.

The bottom rung of a windmill or silo ladder should be at least six feet from the ground.

Check the floors in barn lofts, have no holes through which children might fall—if at all unsafe, do not allow them to play there.

Keep all sharp tools where small children cannot play with them, and instruct older children in the proper use of them.

Think through the hazards which the farm may have for children. Take time to explain safety to the children. It isn't enough just to say "Don't." It is not very comforting after an accident to say "If only we had . . ."

"Of all sad words of tongue or pen

The saddest are these: 'It might have been.'"

Funny and Otherwise

One of our neighbors spent the summer in France and was making it known as widely as she could.

"And Paris," she gushed, "Paris is marvelous. The people are all so educated and cultured, nothing crude as in this country. My dear, even the street cleaners speak French."

The miser's wife was going to take a trip. He: "It says here he travels fastest who travels alone."

She: "I'm still going to take the train."

There's a psychiatrist I know who sometimes gets the feeling that the whole world is bats anyhow, so why bother? A friend of his may have started him off on this idea—this friend was a young psychiatric student interning in a famous rest home.

Every morning, the young student would pass by the psycho ward on his way to his own office, and every morning he'd stop and watch one of the inmates, who was always winding up and pitching an imaginary ball.

One day my friend asked the student: "Why do you always stop to watch that guy who thinks he's Carl Erskine?"

"Very simple," the student said darkly. "If things go on the way they are, I'm going to be battling against that guy one of these days, and I want to get on to his curves."

A lecturer was describing the effects of continuous indulgence in the use of alcohol. He mentioned a case in which a man had drunk to excess for a number of years and was so saturated with alcoholic fumes that one night when he was blowing out a candle his breath took fire, and in a short time he died from spontaneous combustion.

One of the audience said that he wished to thank the lecturer for having saved his life.

"How have I saved your life?" asked the speaker.

"How?" replied the man. "No more candles for me. I'm going, all-electric."

BOZO

By Foxo Reardon

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

love from daddy

—By EDNA CORNELL

PEGGY McNAUGHTON gazed through the window at the school grounds.

She watched the bobbing of coloured head scarves and curls, and flashes of diamond socks as bare legs crossed again and again toward the hub of learning. Bicycles hurried along dirt paths. Laughter and girlish voices popped up everywhere.

Would her own small children one day step across the street into this structure of higher education? Or was Terry to make the whole thing impossible by refusing to fight the one thing which held him so securely in its grip?

Peggy turned from the window, where scrun crumpled trousers trembled against the ice-blue pane. She looked through the dinette where cigarette ashes lay on the maple table. She saw glasses standing in white rings of their own making, empty bottles with gold labels, black scuff marks on the linoleum.

Were her efforts worth while? Could a home be built on crumbling foundations? She pensive-footed through the dinette, hating the dead ashes, the odorous bottles, the smoke-film on the windows. She went into the living room, not wanting to remember the smashed bottle on the hearth, or its reason for being there.

She thought of marriage, and Terry. Terry with his grasshopper moods, and bantering manner; his quick smile, and rough black hair. Terry was like one of these bundles of quilt pieces, full of surprises and disappointments; of brightness and ugliness.

The old minister had quoted: "For better or for worse." And he might have added: "Because there will be a fine little son and daughter, one day."

It might help to throw one's self across the bed and weep, as women do when seeking refuge. It might help to pick up that blue Chinese vase and send it smashing against the wall, but mothers don't do that. Mothers seek refuge in befuddlement either. They just went on day after day, as if all the world were a beautiful serene place, and their individual hearts were not sore and her hands. The girlish chatter had ceased, and sparrows twittered incessantly. A bus cruised by, followed by a crackling motorcycle.

In two and a half hours, Jackie and Barba would be home, chattering wildly about their day at school. To them, life was a normal, happy, except for those occasions when they witnessed Terry's fall from his paternal pedestal. And because they were so ready to reinstate him, the break would be difficult.

But it must be done, and done now!

The realization called for action, heavy with grief. Peggy knew their little tricks of camouflage. They took extra precautions with make-up to cover up the tiny lines of strain etching finely, oil so firmly, into youthful skin. They rubbed vaseline on eyelids to counteract the feverish shine in their eyes. And they dressed with care. Roundum heels and torn nylons were sure signs of weakness.

Peggy sank down on the mouse-grey chesterfield, cupping her chin in the ink-leather palms of her hands. She would find a job, and the children must accept a few responsibilities. An apartment would be difficult to locate, but one room and a gas plate would be fine for a start.

Wings grew to her slim ankles, now that she'd made her decision. The house was tidy again. Peggy stepped into the tiled bathroom, stripped off her clothes, pushed her golden hair under a plastic cap, and turned on the shower. She held up her face and her arms, letting the warm water wash away her weariness. She rubbed herself dry, and slipped into fresh underthings, and a tailored dress. Clothes and thoughts must be practical from now on, for she would be the breadwinner!

Never again would she be hoodwinked by endearments and gifts! Terry, like Custer, had made his last stand, as far as she was concerned.

She screwed pearl studs to her ear lobes and pulled the golden waves of her hair. She smoothed the blue dress over her hips, easing away untidy lines, and pinned a clip to the shoulder. It was then she heard the foot-steps running lightly up to the door, and the double chime murmuring through the house. Who on earth could that be at a critical time like this?

She opened the front door, warily, and saw the florist's boy in blue uniform. He saluted smartly and handed her the box. She took it to the kitchen and opened it on the table, folding back the pink tissue. Nestling in maidenhair fern, there was a white card.

Peggy was still cradling the flowers against her face when the children burst in the back door. Jackie flung down his books, and with typical male unconsciousness, sniffed: "Flowers, huh? Gee, I'm

Clear, permanent livestock brand real protection against loss

REGINA.—A clear and permanent livestock brand is real protection against loss of animals by straying or theft, said C. E. Beveridge, Saskatchewan's livestock commissioner.

A brand is legal as evidence of ownership only after it has been registered with the Recorder of Brands, Saskatchewan Department of Agriculture. A livestock owner makes application for a brand and when allotted it is known as a recorded brand. The cost is $2 for a four-year period, and the brand may be placed in any position on the animal except on the ribs, providing it is in the position allotted to the applicant.

Branding irons must be carefully made with the face of the iron at least one quarter of an inch thick and the characters not less than three inches high for calves and not less than four inches high for older animals.

Animals to be branded should be put into a squeeze gate if possible, or stretched out. The brand should not be applied if animal is wet or dirty. If hair is very long at the spot where brands are to be applied, it should be clipped off. Irons are best heated to a dull red in banked wood coals, and applied steadily with a rotary rocking motion to ensure that all parts of the figures or letters are come in contact with the animal's hide. The iron must be held on the animal only until the skin is pink, or sufficient time to kill the roots of hair in the area. Too heavy a burn is likely to produce scabbing and blotching of the brand, while burning too lightly leaves a temporary hair brand. A leaflet describing how to brand may be had from the Animal Industry Branch.

Livestock are easiest to brand when they are small, and brand their growth with them, becoming more clearly visible as time goes on. As a rule if branding is done in the summer months when hair is short and the animal is allowed to run in the open during healing, a better brand will result.

Mr. Beveridge suggested that liquid branding compounds were unsatisfactory since they generally do not do a good job, and may run, causing an illegible brand.

hungry!" His world was still secure.

Barbara stole up, soft-eyed and gentle. "Ooo. Aren't they pretty, Mum?" Then her blue eyes mirrored concern and anguish. Her lips trembled slightly. "Mommy, she whispered, 'you're crying!'" Peggy swallowed with difficulty. She looked at her daughter's anxious little face, blurry through tears. "Crying? Oh, no, honey. You see these flowers are still damp with dew. I just got a little water on my face."

"Are those flowers' little things wrapped in ruby velvet, and sparkling with diamonds? You told me that once."

"These are little messengers from the king."

"You look so pretty, Mommy," Barb said, fascinated.

"Do I, dear? I guess that's because I want to look extra nice when Daddy comes home tonight," jolly said Peggy, treasuring the card from the box.

"Love from Daddy."

239,912 Bottles whole blood provided through Red Cross

The Canadian Red Cross provided 239,912 bottles of whole blood for free transfusions to 149,628 patients in Canadian hospitals last year.

This was a record high of the use of whole blood. More than 5,000 bottles of blood were used last year than in any year since the Red Cross free blood transfusion service was inaugurated in 1947.

These statistics were released recently by Vernon C. Hale, national blood donor chairman of the Canadian Red Cross Society. "The use of this blood for free transfusions represents a saving of almost $6,000,000 for the people of Canada," he said. "This figure is based on the prevailing price of $25 per bottle which is charged where the free Red Cross service is not in operation. At present, this service is provided throughout British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island and in certain areas of Ontario and Quebec."

Mr. Hale also commended the citizens of Canada who voluntarily donated 274,982 bottles of blood to the Canadian Red Cross during 1955. He said the blood not used for free transfusions was sent to Connaught Medical Research Laboratories of the University of Toronto. There it was put through a fractionation process for the recovery of several vital blood products. These are serum albumin, gamma globulin, and fibrinogen.

Serum albumin has now replaced dried plasma and is used especially in the treatment of severe burns or shock. Gamma globulin is used for medical research and the treatment of several infectious diseases. Fibrinogen is usually used in cases of severe hemorrhage.

All of these blood products are distributed free to Canadian hospitals by the Canadian Red Cross Society. A quantity of serum albumin is also being stockpiled for civil defence and the Armed Forces.

"The number of lives saved by the blood donated to the Red Cross and the research being carried on by our laboratories will never be known, but we do know that it is a vital contributing factor to the health of Canada," Mr. Hale commented.

Dr. George W. Miller, national director of the Canadian Red Cross Blood Transfusion Service, reported 938,083 Canadians have received free transfusions of 1,351,324 bottles of whole blood since 1947 when the peacetime project was established.

He also provided 1955 statistics on another important but little known free service of the Red Cross Transfusion Service. During the year, technicians in Red Cross laboratories conducted 124,135 clinical Rh tests for expectant mothers throughout Canada.

Machine best for washing lingerie

Researchers at Michigan State University say the washing machine does a better job keeping white nylons white than the hand laundry method.

Researchers in the university's textiles and clothing department found that both hand and machine laundering produce satisfactory results. But the machine, because of its effective scouring and thorough rinsing, ranked the machine number one. These factors are especially important in preventing yellowing of nylon slips, they said.

Both washing methods prevented a redepositing of dirt which causes cloth to appear gray, the study showed.

The researchers also found that tricort knit nylon slips shrink slightly more than woven satin slips.

Why do the people who are allergic to fresh air ALWAYS occupy the window seats on buses these hot summer days?

A horrendous mistake is now you deduce the trivial error you often make when it's perpetrated by the other fellow.

The "all expense" in the phrase "all expense-paid vacation" stands for all the expenses you must pay to fully enjoy your vacation.
